

In 1966 Brigit Fleming Smith married an Australian from Victoria who had recently bought enough shares in the old Chartered Landed Company of Van Diemen's Land to give him overall control in farming Woolnorth at Cape Grim in Tasmania's north-west.

The vast tract of land in the teeth of the Roaring Forties was to become home and except for 5,000 acres of the 60,000 acres, it hadn't changed since the first pioneers battled with this country in the 1840s.
