You knew it had to happen, there is no point running away from it. The time has come when sales of woodchips have improved so we are looking at logging highly sensitive and controversial coupes and Carl Porters block is the first of the ranks. I was just thumbing through my Porters file and I noticed that I sent the notification in to you guys on the 30th of May 2001. By my calculations, this makes it 10 months (40 weeks). I know that I am not the best fauna officer around, but I thought that my skills were better than that of a level F, which the current notification length must make me. Is there any chance that we can have the specialist advice for this coupe soon?

Cheers

Russell
