RESTORING TRUST

How to solve governance issues critical to Tasmania's future.

Invited speakers: representatives of all political parties and regulatory authorities.
Speakers: Dr Andrew Lohrey, Dr Wynne Russell, Peter Cundall, Dr Andreas Ernst

Function Room 6, Grand Chancellor, 29 Cameron St Launceston

Conflicts of interest and poor governance continue to dog Tasmania's environment.

There is a widespread perception that there is one law for forestry and another for everyone else. Now the water toxin revelations in St Helens have created a crisis of public confidence in our drinking water.

How will each party restore public trust and improve governance?

Labor, the Liberals and Greens have been asked how they would:

- remove conflicts of interest in ministerial portfolios;
- remove conflicts of interest in government bodies;
- fix the regulation of forestry so that there is a level playing field; and
- properly investigate and fix the contamination of our drinking water catchments with toxins.
