

What's happening to our *Urban Natural Areas

and what can we do about it?

A talk and discussion with Bob Holderness-Roddam M. Env. Mgmt.

At the Philip Smith Centre, 2 Edward
Street, Glebe

Wednesday 20 August 2014

At 7:00 pm

Cost: Gold coin to help cover room hire.

Our urban natural areas, those isolated fragments of bush in our cities and suburbs, or at their edges, are very important for a number of reasons. Unfortunately, they are under threat from surrounding developments. This session will set out some of the issues and then invite participants to discuss some of the options.

Bob Holderness-Roddam has a particular interest in our urban natural areas. He has a Masters degree in Environmental Management and is an Associate with the School of Land and Food at the University of Tasmania